Don't Miss Out on the Multi Trillion Dollar Forex Market

As recently as the 1990s the foreign exchange market was essentially inaccessible to individual traders due to the high minimum capital amounts required. Relatively recent developments in technology, centred around the internet, have created the 'retail' forex market, enabling individual investors with smaller capital sums to trade currencies.

Opening a new brokerage was prohibitively expensive until the last couple of years, when 'White Label' options became a reality. Now is the perfect time to enter the growing forex marketplace as a retail brokerage. A new retail brokerage can start as a white label with only a small amount of seed capital.

A white label broker can concentrate on building their brand and client base and defer the cost of investing in their own technology until a later time when the broker is cash flow positive.

Low Barrier To Entry

Forex is a 24 hour market unlike stocks and other asset classes.
